

Ana Seliškar is a Smart City Consultant with Cisco Systems for South East Europe region. Her main role is empowering and enabling Cisco's eco system partners active in regional cities in order to provide strategic advice, business change and process transformation to improve city services and deliver cost efficiencies. The integration of urban lighting, city parking, transport, public safety, utilities and city management are at the heart of numerous initiatives. Before she joined Cisco Systems she held various high level ICT positions in different industries. Last position she held was a CIO of City of Ljubljana and before that she was CIO of Slovenia's largest daily newspaper Delo. Ana Seliškar graduated in Computer and information sciences at the University of Ljubljana.