

Bjarke Kovshøj is the Head of Citizen Engagement within the Entrepreneurship Team at EIT Climate-KIC. In his capacity, Bjarke plays a pivotal role in overseeing and orchestrating projects aimed at nurturing early-stage ideas and fostering innovation within cities, all with the overarching goal of helping cities achieve their ambitious net-zero emissions targets.

Bjarke's expertise lies in his adeptness at facilitating collaboration and driving systemic change to tackle the multifaceted challenges of cities. Prior to his role at EIT Climate-KIC, Bjarke actively worked on engaging with various cities, leveraging his expertise to transform urban climate challenges into new opportunities. His noteworthy contributions include his involvement with the C40 City Solutions Platform, where he worked alongside municipalities to develop innovative solutions for climate-related issues.

Bjarke holds a Master of International Business from Copenhagen Business School.